Summary:

For many enthusiasts, 1989 is considered to be one of the best years for the 930 Turbo, as it was not only the final year of production for the model (with production transitioning to the 964 Turbo in March 1990), but the only year that it was fitted with Porsche bulletproof G50 five-speed manual transmission and hydraulic clutch. Suspension components were also firmed up to improve responsiveness. Torsion bars at the rear were increased in diameter, while both front and rear anti-roll bars were increased in thickness, and damper settings were made firmer.

Well regarded as an industry performance benchmark since its introduction, 1989 model year 911 Turbos are highly sought after for the updates over their predecessors and are excellent cars to own and enjoy in all regards.

This specific car will appeal to a knowledgeable buyer seeking the ultimate example of the 930 Turbo. All original books, tools, stickers, MOT's, service receipts / stamps and complete matching numbers. Porsche Certificate of Authenticity. By appointment.
